Description

Croft Cottage, built circa 1794, is a vernacular Irish cottage now sympathetically restored and upgraded to provide bright, welcoming and comfortable accommodation. With oil heating, a turf fire in the living room and a log-burning, cast iron stove in the kitchen - you can live the present from the past.

Croft cottage, located on the north shore of Loughros Point, looks over the bay to Rosbeg beach, Portnoo, Arranmore Island and eastwards to Mt. Errigal and the Bluestack Mountains. The cottage is also within earshot of the Owenea river - noted for salmon and sea-trout fishing.
