Description

Red Row Cottage is a small traditional style cottage built in the early part of the 19th century and is probably over 200 years old. It was possibly one of a few similar cottages built by a wealthy landowner for his tenants. The cottage is compact and solidly built, with thick stone outside walls. Its present layout presents a cheerful exterior with yellow walls, accented with red on the door, window sills and shutters, bench and flower containers. The living room area has a lovely traditional open fireplace as its central focus, flanked by a kitchen area to the left, a double sleeper couch to the right and access to the two bedrooms.
